

Into the Bernese Oberland!

Route/Tour description:

The Bernese Oberland is simply a wonderful place!

Therefore, the focus of this tour is clearly on the landscape!

The route first leads along Lake Brienz to Interlaken. Turning south, it first goes up to Grindelwald. Before reaching the village, the north face of the Eiger can be admired on the right - simply impressive! Further uphill to the foot of the upper Grindelwald glacier. This is where the road for public transport ends - the only way to continue is by bus. After this short visit we return to the Lauterbrunnen Valley. Direction Lauterbrunnen and on to Stechelberg. If there is still enough time, a visit to the Trümmelbach waterfalls is worthwhile. Back to Interlaken, we first head towards Beatenberg. Shortly after, the path branches off to the right towards Habkern. At the entrance to the village, a small toll road turns off to the left, offering wonderful views of the triumvirate of the Bernese Oberland (Eiger, Mönch and Jungfrau). The road continues through Beatenberg to Sigriswil. The further course of the tour via Meiersmaad and Eriz is very narrow but extremely attractive. Via Schallenberg (1167 m) and Escholzmatt we finally reach the Glaubenbüelenpass (1611 m) - also quite narrow but with great views of the Sarnensee. Once in the valley, we turn right to the Lungernsee and finally over the Brünigpass (1008 m) back to Meiringen. Total distance approx. 240 km
