Route description/characteristics:

Seen from Montan, this circuit takes us in a southeasterly direction. Although only the Passo Manghen is over 2000 m high, the winding route offers everything a motorcyclist's heart could wish for and friends of beautiful mountain landscapes will not be left out.

From Montan we first take the main route towards Cavalese. 3 km after Kaltenbronn, the well-maintained road to Altrei branches off to the right. From there, turn left past the church and over a narrow asphalted band down into Val di Cembra. Once there, the road turns off to the right. A dream route follows, which sometimes leads wide, sometimes narrowly to Faver.

Turn left into the valley and up again on the other side. Turn right at the right-of-way sign and follow Lases to the N 47, which we follow for 5 km to the left in an easterly direction. Then turn right towards Caldonazzo, along the lake of the same name. In Calceranica turn right and after another 5 km keep left. The path leads to Carbonare, which is very winding and well developed. There turn right towards Folgaria. At the top of the Passo di Sommo (1343 m) the path turns left and then left again.. At the top of the Passo di Sommo (1343 m), the path continues to turn left uphill towards Tonezza. Behind Tonezza (before the tunnels) a small road with many hairpin bends branches off to the left down into the valley without prior notice. At the bottom left and immediately right again, the path leads over a wonderful pass road up towards Asiago. Via Rotzo, Albaredo and Roana we reach the N 349, where we turn left and follow the road up to the Passo di Vezzena (1402 m). Just under 4 km after the top of the pass, the Kaiser-jägerstraße branches off to the right. This road leads steeply down and offers a great view of Lake Caldonazzo and the surrounding area. Once we reach the valley, we meet the N 47 again, which we follow about 12 km to the right in an easterly direction in order to reach the last highlight of the tour, the Passo Manghen (2047 m), via Borgo and Telve.

After we arrived back in the valley we follow the signs in direction Auer (Ora) back to Montan.

Total distance about 265 km
